Dear participants of the EU Internet Forum Launch Event,

Let me first thank you warmly for the very constructive discussions we had yesterday and the excellent cooperation that made this launch event a success.

For your information and evaluation, please find attached a revised "Statement of discussions". It is not a binding document but the expression of our joint endeavour to tackle more effectively harmful content online.

We hope that this revised text reflects in a balanced manner contributions from all participants as well as the outcome of our discussions yesterday. And we hope that it provides the necessary guidance for our work in the months to come under the EU Internet Forum.

We will keep you informed in the weeks on the initiatives that we are planning for 2016.

We are looking forward to our continued collaboration and common action so that we can proudly say that our actions made a difference.

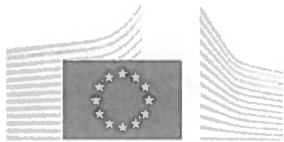

Best regards,

EUROPEAN COMMISSION

LAUNCH OF THE EU INTERNET FORUM

BRUSSELS, 3 DECEMBER 2015

Recent terrorist attacks and attempted attacks have brought into sharper focus how terrorist groups are using the internet to radicalise, recruit, communicate, direct terrorist activity and use as a medium to glorify their atrocities.

At this time of heightened terrorist threat, a coordinated approach is required between the EU institutions, bodies, Member States and the internet industry to urgently address the abuse of the internet and social media for terrorist purposes.

Against this backdrop, EU Commissioner for Migration, Home Affairs and Citizenship Dimitris Avramopoulos, in cooperation with EU Commissioner for Justice, Consumers and Gender Equality, Věra Jourová, today launched the EU Internet Forum, bringing together EU Interior Ministers as well as a number of internet companies, Europol, and the EU Counter Terrorism Co-ordinator.

Discussions focused on how to further improve collaborations already undertaken and how EU institutions, agencies, Member States and companies can upscale their efforts to protect the public. Participants agreed on the following common objectives that will guide future action in tackling abuse on the internet, whilst fully safeguarding fundamental rights, such as freedom of expression.

- Restricting availability of content that promotes terrorism or incites violence;
- Supporting and increasing effective counter-narratives online and promoting media in cooperation with civil society partners.

The need to enhance efforts and capabilities was agreed by all participants. Participants agreed that progress on the objectives must be tangible and swift. Participants also discussed specific actions to implement these objectives and agreed to undertake their best endeavour to progressively implement these actions.

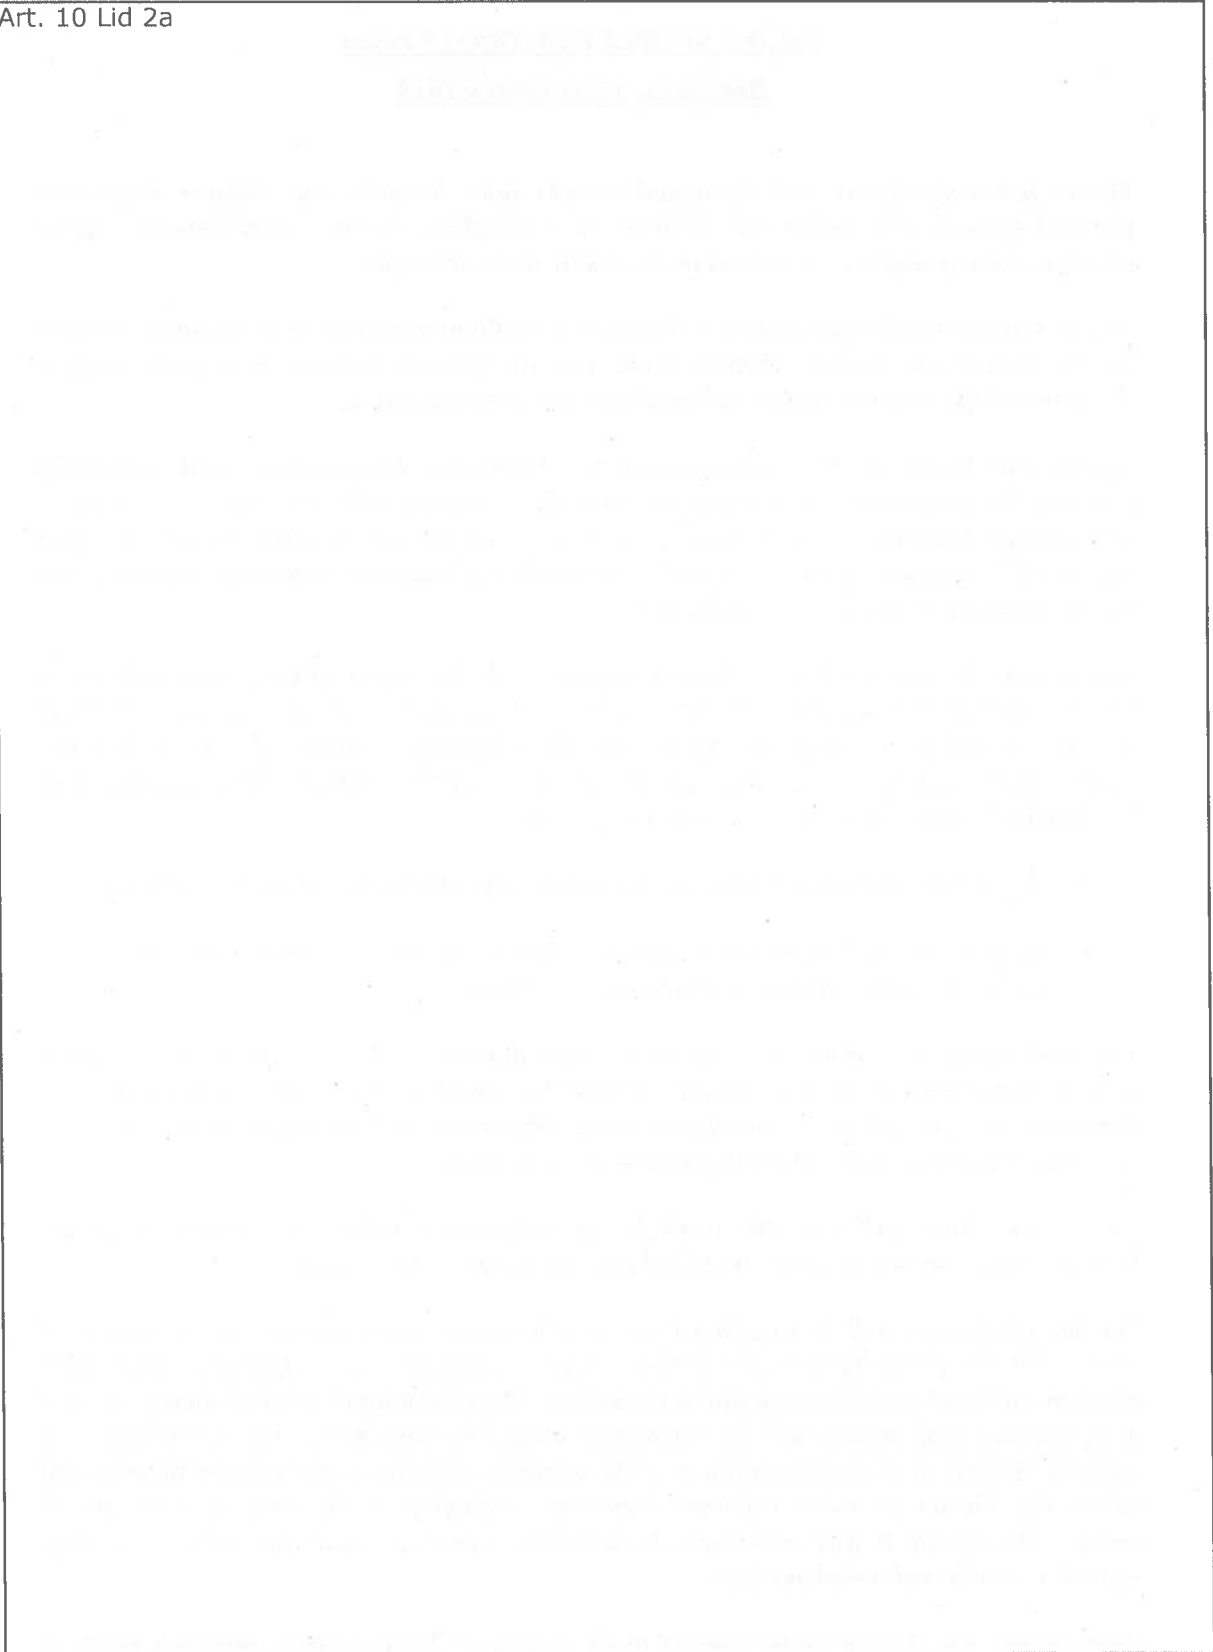

Participants took note that the work being undertaken within the framework of the Digital Single Market Strategy, will feed into the works of the Forum.

Further workshops will be organised on specific topics and measures in the course of 2016 with the participation of Member States, companies, EU Agencies, and other relevant national and international stakeholders. Representatives of civil society as well as academics and experts will be invited on a case-by-case basis. The workshops will address the practical implementation of the common objectives and related actions and advise the Forum on other relevant initiatives, including in the area of hate speech online. All agreed it was important to maximise synergies and join efforts, develop mutual learning and avoid overlaps.

Participants also agreed to meet again in the course of 2016 to assess progress made in the implementation of actions discussed at the Forum and of other relevant initiatives.

Dear all,

Please find attached the final draft text for discussion at this evening's launch of the EU Internet Forum. In revising these conclusions, we have tried to reach an ambitious compromise, taking account of both Member States' and companies' comments.

We are keen to secure a set of conclusions which everyone can agree and work towards, whilst ensuring that the necessary progress is made in this challenging area. Please share these with your representatives.

In response to a few queries, please note there will be no press in the room and that

Dear Art. 10 lid 2e

Thank you very much for revising the document on the basis of the discussions yesterday. Please find attached a few suggestion of the Netherlands. I am sorry I couldn't reply sooner.

In the revised document you sent yesterday, the introduction was not included. Is this a result of the discussions yesterday?
I have included one or two remarks to the original introduction (page one). I have attached it as a separate document. Since it states the objectives of the Forum and workshops we think the introduction should not be removed from the document.

We think this version is more robust then the earlier draft. However it is important that we create the possibility to discuss other (and if needed more far reaching) initiatives too.

20151124 EU IT Forum objectives Implementation Targets.doc

Dear Colleagues,

In preparation for our discussion tomorrow, please find attached our objectives and actions for the launch event next week which we would like to use as the basis of tomorrow's discussions. These actions have been put together on the basis of the two preparatory workshops we have held with MS, industry and civil society. Actions are to be implemented by all stakeholders during the course of 2016 on a voluntary basis.

The aim is to submit a consolidated version to Ministers and industry representatives on the 3rd December. It will also serve as a benchmark to report on progress made for the next EU Internet Forum in 2016.

I thank those who have confirmed attendance for tomorrow's meeting and invite those that have not yet confirmed to do so at the following email address: Art. 10 lid 2g@ec.europa.eu
