Many thanks for your participation at the preparatory discussions of the IT Forum on 24th July. Please find attached a summary of discussions and the list of those actions which help make a good referral (based on discussions during the day).

We will shortly be in touch with details of our follow-up meeting, scheduled for October.

Please note that the ministerial discussion, hosted by our Commissioner, is likely to take place late afternoon/early evening on the 2nd December, in order to coincide with JHA. Again, further details to follow. Kind regards

Meeting Report of 24th July 2015

Preparatory meeting of the EU Internet Forum

SUMMARY REPORT ON PREPARATORY DISCUSSIONS OF THE IT FORUM

Introduction

On 24th July, the Commission chaired a meeting of practitioners and policy makers from 18 Member States, along with representatives from Facebook, Google/Youtube, Ask.fm and Microsoft to discuss online terrorist material. The EU's Counter Terrorism Co-ordinator's Office and the External Action Service were also in attendance. This was the first meeting which brought the industry and Member States together, in preparation for the launch of the ministerial EU IT Forum to be chaired by the Home Affairs Commissioner towards the end of the year.

In opening, the Commission explained how this priority piece of work underpinned the proposals set out in the European Agenda on Security, and the Internal Security Strategy which was currently being revised. The freedom of expression remained the priority. Whilst the internet had revolutionised communication, it was also clear that criminals, including terrorists, were exploiting the internet for criminal and terrorist gain. The purpose of these discussions was to discuss how EU citizens could best be protected from such harmful material, whilst avoiding any encroachment or conflict with fundamental rights. This initial meeting was an opportunity for industry to meet with Member States and set out their efforts in this area. Its focus was primarily on reducing accessibility to terrorist content, with a view to further discussions – possibly in October – being held on challenging terrorist propaganda online. DG HOME explained how this work fitted together with other EU workstreams such as the Radicalisation Awareness Network and Europol's Internet Referral Unit.

Twitter had sent their apologies but also their assurances that they remained committed to this initiative.

Industry Presentations

Google/YouTube, Facebook, Ask.fm, and Microsoft then proceeded to set out in detail their efforts in this area. It was clear from discussions that the large internet companies are advanced in this area, with reporting mechanisms in place and clear policies on what material is forbidden, including that relating to terrorism. Profiles of individuals linked to terrorist organisations are forbidden. Whilst violent and graphic material will not be tolerated, if there is an educational purpose to serve, an assessment will be made as to whether to show at least some of the material. The companies are reliant on Member States to bring material to their attention (both from the public and law enforcement partners). 'Trusted Flagger' approaches had proved effective but there was a need for more flaggers, particularly those who could 'flag' in different languages. There was a question as to whether a legal definition of what constitutes illegal material would help the industry. Terrorist material was compared to child-abuse material, whereby it is often easier for the companies to determine what kind of media item should be considered illegal and be reported.

Most of the companies had been involved in supporting NGOs in promoting material to challenge the extremist narrative. This will need to be explored in more detail at the next meeting.

Member States' Response

Member States then intervened, updating on their approaches. Some Member States have enhanced their legislation in this area, whilst others had set up their own national teams to help identify material of concern. A number of Member States expressed their support for the new Internet Referral Unit at Europol.

Europol

Europol provided an overview of the IRU. The IRU would scan for and identify material, assessing it against the principles set out in the Council Framework Decision 2008 on Combating Terrorism as well as against the host company's terms and conditions. Most Member States had now provided points of contact. The Unit was in its early stages, but there might be scope to reach out to those third countries with whom Europol already had existing relationships.

Best Practice for Referrals

There was then a helpful discussion about what makes a good referral.

Assessment of Meeting

- This was a productive and promising first meeting of its kind with a good turnout from both Member States and those industry representatives who had been invited.
- The ongoing support of the large companies is vital considering the large volumes of terrorist material that remain so easily accessible. The IRU can play a key role in supporting these companies identify terrorist material hosted on their sites. The discussion on what makes a good referral was helpful, but highlighted that this process will only work if the companies themselves have robust terms and conditions in place. This demonstrates the need to use the Internet Forum to reach out to the smaller companies and initial attempts have been difficult. Smaller companies will be reliant on the experience and expertise of the larger ones. Some work is already underway, but more needs to be done.
- Consideration should be given as to what extent enhanced legislation would assist, taking account of the Council Framework Decision 2008 and UN and EU lists designating terrorist organisations.
- There was appetite for a further meeting to consider how the internet companies and Member States can work together to empower civil society partners to challenge terrorist propaganda.

Hey Art. 10 lid 2e

Ben jij er vrijdag bij? Los van dat het sowieso leuk is je even te zien natuurlijk, vroeg ik me af of het handig is nog even te bellen vooraf (donderdagmiddag ofzo). Ik denk dat ik okay ben de bijeenkomst zelf te doen, is voor jou wellicht ook prettig qua drukte, maar wil wel even zeker hebben dat ik jouw ideeën mee kan nemen, vooral over het forum dat de CIE gaat inrichten.

Dear Art. 10 lid 2e

Thanks for your email. We were in fact considering for quite some time to get in contact with Art. 10 lid 2a The last meeting fell into a very busy moment at the beginning of the year and we were not able to attend.

Art. 10 lid 2e and myself would be available for a meeting on Monday 22. Did I understand correctly that you would be coming to Brussels or was the idea to have the meeting in The Hague?

Thanks again and hope to hear from you soon.

How are you? And how is the team? I hope the busyness us still manageable? The JHA-Council coming up will no doubt add some extra pressure and work.

In that capacity I am emailing you with a request. Our colleague at the NL permanent representation, Art. 10 lid 2e has previously been in touch with you or one of your colleagues to see if it would be possible to have a short meeting to discuss efforts on internet and CT. Art. 10 lid 2e

First attempts at setting up a meeting were aimed at the end of this week, but I understand that that would not be possible. We are now looking at the possibilities for setting something up in June. Either shortly before or directly after the JHA-Council, depending on what would work best for you. I do understand that this is an especially busy time, but we would very much appreciate to have a short exchange with you or a colleague before the summer holidays start and everything slows down.

Could you let me know if it would be possible to have a meeting somewhere between 10 and 22 June? It would be great to see you!

Thanks so much in advance. Best regards, Art. 10 lid 2e

Subject: Invitation to the EU Internet Forum – awareness raising session on 24th July 2015 in Brussels, Belgium

Dear Madam/Sir,

Following recent attacks in Europe, the terrorist threat to the European Union remains high. There is increasing concern about the way in which terrorists are abusing the internet and social media to incite terrorist atrocities or radicalise and recruit others. Ministers have identified addressing terrorists' use of the internet as a priority and it is clear we need to explore areas for enhancing our efforts and achieving tangible progress. The European Agenda on Security committed to the establishment of an EU-level Internet Forum. A series of events are planned in preparation of the formal launch of the Forum later this year. As one of the first such events the Commission would like to invite you to the:

EU Internet Forum - Awareness raising session between the internet and social media companies and EU Member States

24 July 2015 - 10:00-16:30

Schuman Room of the Berlaymont Building

200 rue de la Loi, 1040 Brussels, Belgium

The purpose of this meeting is to bring together representatives from Ministries of Interior and/or Justice as well as law enforcement from all EU Member States and Europol together with representatives of internet and social media companies. The objective is to set out the work that is already underway, discuss the challenges from an operational, policy and industry perspective, and identify areas for further collaboration.

Subject to your thoughts, we see the first two priorities as centred on reducing accessibility to terrorist content (complementary to Europol's efforts in this area) and on increasing efforts to challenge the terrorist narrative online (complementary to initiatives Communications Advisory Team). Internet and social media companies will have the opportunity to present what they are already doing to support the development and dissemination of counter narratives as well as the application of their terms and conditions, which would serve as a basis for a framework of engagement at national as well as European level. We hope that this first meeting will enhance understanding of each other's capability and establish a more collaborative working relationship going forward.

An agenda will be sent out nearer the time, but in the meantime, we would be grateful if you could come prepared to speak about your Government's approach to tackling this issue; the challenges as you see them; and those areas on which you would like the Forum to focus and what deliverables you expect.

Interpretation facilities will be provided for in English, French, German, Italian, Dutch and Spanish.

Please register by providing your name and contact details (email, organisation, date of birth, ID number, ID expiry) of your representative(s) by email to Art. 10 lid 2g Art. 10 @ec.europa.eu by 8th July 2015.
